Hold Policy for Courses Not Taught

It is important that Kent State's University Catalog reflect actual curricular being taught. For that reason, the Office of Curriculum Services will place a hold on all courses that have not been taught for five or more consecutive years. These courses will be removed from the catalog, but will not be inactivated; their status in the Banner course inventory will change from "active" to "hold." The Office of Curriculum Services will notify each dean and chair/director of courses placed on hold. Alternatively, academic units may request formal inactivation of the courses. All requests for inactivation will follow the usual curricular approval procedures.

While a course is on hold, it may be offered to students. Academic units will notify the Office of Curriculum Services their desire to offer a course on hold so its status can be changed to active in Banner. If the offering is successful (i.e., the course is taught), the course will be reinstated in the appropriate catalog and its status remain active in Banner. If the course is not taught, it will be put back on hold.

Courses that are on hold for three years will be inactivated. The dean and chair/director will be notified of such action before it occurs.
